

MAKING THE CONNECTION

Designed by Michael Schärli and Andreas Hofmann of Switzerland, the Connected Bathroom works on a 'zonal' bathroom principle which suggests that different activities in the bathing area require different levels of privacy.

The connected bathroom is divided into four zones: bathtub, sink with mirror, shower and toilet. Each of the sanitary installations stands on a modular platform that is equipped with connecting elements. With this flexible system, say its creators, comfortable, individual and versatile living areas can be created.
